

A picture of perfection: The standardized EHS risk program

For a company to truly achieve a cohesive EHS compliance program, it must be built to be calibrated across the entire organization.

Standardize with one approach to understanding and evaluating risk across the company, and implement it in every geography.

Top down

Bottom
up

Empower every global team with visibility of their local, jurisdictional requirement and the means to track compliance against them.

To be able to properly evaluate, intervene, and remedy exceptional and systemic risks takes a balanced mix of top-down and bottom-up approaches so accountability and visibility are consistent across the corporate and team levels — creating a program built around an accurate global compliance status.

Find out more about building an effective EHS compliance program in our eBook: A handbook for EHS compliance transformation

Download the eBook